Homework Policy 2024

The governors and staff believe that homework is an important aspect of a child's education. It encourages children to realise that learning can take place outside the classroom and promotes independent learning, thus encouraging the child to take greater responsibility for their progress.

Introduction

Homework is anything that children do outside the normal school day that contributes to their learning in response to guidance from the school. Homework encompasses a whole variety of activities instigated by teachers and parents to support children's learning. For example, a parent who spends time reading a story to their child before bedtime is helping with homework.

Homework plays a positive role in raising a child's level of attainment. We also acknowledge the important role of play and free time in a child's growth and development. While homework is important, it should not prevent children from taking part in the wide range of out-of-school clubs and organisations that play an important part in the lives of many children. We are well aware that children spend more time at home than at school, and we believe they develop their skills, interests and talents to the full only when parents encourage them to make maximum use of the experiences and opportunities that are available outside of school.

Aims:

Homework allows parents, carers and the school to work in partnership for the benefit of their child. We believe homework:

- enables pupils to make maximum progress in their academic and social development
- helps pupils develop the skills of an independent learner
- promotes a partnership between home and school in supporting each child's learning
- encourages children to share learning with their parents.
- provides educational experiences not possible in school
- consolidates and reinforces learning from school and allows children to practise skills taught in lessons
- helps children develop good work habits for the future
- encourages self-discipline as the children take responsibility for their learning.

Types of Homework

Teachers set a variety of homework activities. From the Early Years Foundation Stage onwards, we encourage the children to read by giving them books to take home to read with their parents. We give guidance and information to parents to help them achieve the maximum benefit from this time spent reading with their child.

Appendix A shows the homework given out during a typical week for each year group.

From time to time, homework may vary in response to a particular activity such as an educational visit. Teachers will use their professional judgement on the type of homework given and are given liberty to change this depending on the needs of individual pupils.

It is our expectation that homework is handed in on time. If homework is late, or consistently not handed in, parents will be contacted and the work may need to be completed during school time (breaktimes).

Teachers will offer opportunities through the week to provide support for children to help them with any homework that is confusing or difficult for children to complete.

Homework will not be set if your child is on holiday or absent with sickness. Only if your child is going to be absent from school for a number of weeks will homework be set.

Completing homework

We increase the amount of homework that we give the children as they move through the school. We expect Key Stage 1 children to spend approximately one hour a week completing homework, including reading with a parent. We expect children in years 3 and 4 to spend approximately one and a half hours a week on homework and children in years 5 and 6 to spend approximately two hours per week.

Each class has a set day when their homework is given and each class also has a set day for returning the homework.

All homework is differentiated to suit children's needs. We expect parents to regularly support the school with the homework policy – and this is stated in the 'Home-School Agreement' which is a signed document when a child begins at the school. If homework is not completed, the class teacher may discuss this with both child and parent.

Pupils with Special Educational Needs and Disability

We set homework for all children as a normal part of school life. We ensure that all tasks set are appropriate to the ability of the child. If a child has additional/special needs, we endeavour to adapt any task set so that all children can contribute in a positive way.

The role of parents/carers

Parents have a vital role to play in their child's education and homework is an important part of this process. We ask parents to:

- encourage their child to complete the homework tasks that are set.
- help your children as you feel necessary
- provide a reasonably peaceful, suitable place in which the children can do their homework, ideally with an adult.
- talk to your child about their learning and make it clear to the children that you value their work.

Please do remember that homework is a way to encourage and reinforce learning at home. Do not be surprised if your child is reluctant to complete their homework! We recommend breaking the homework into small chunks to make it manageable for both you and your child. If the homework is regularly taking longer than the guidelines in this policy, then do not be afraid to stop, even if the work is unfinished, and let the class teacher know.

We realise that parents have contrasting views about homework and the amount given by school. However, we encourage you to extend your child's learning at home outside of the homework set. This could take a variety of forms; including workbooks, APPs, visiting the library, nature walks, museum visits for example. Please also remember that it is important for your child to have time to play in order to develop essential social skills.

If parents have any problems or questions about homework, they should, in the first instance, contact the child's class teacher. If their questions are of a more general nature, they should contact a member of the ELT. Finally, if they wish to make a complaint about the school homework policy or the way it is implemented; parents should contact the school's senior leadership team.

Equal opportunities

All children are provided with equal access to homework. Internet access can be given to those pupils who have none at home. Please speak to your child's class teacher to arrange this. We aim to provide suitable learning opportunities regardless of gender, ethnicity or home background.

Monitoring and review

It is the responsibility of our Senior Leadership team to agree and then monitor the school homework policy as well as the Home-School Agreement.
