

Carl Linnaeus

The Man Who Named

Carl Linnaeus (Lin-ay-us) was born in 1707, in Sweden. As a boy, he was very interested in the natural world, especially BOTANY, the study of plants. His father Nils taught him that every plant has a name. At the time he was five, Carl had his own small garden. He named all of the plants he had grown.